

un_function(words):

After some un_functions have been performed - what phrases, words or recombinations of them become newly perceptible? (what can you see through the residue, gaps, spaces and cracks?) what grabs your attention?

un_function
(time):

Nothing stays
stable, things
change over time. Wait, wait
more, keep waiting. Practice patience. What happens to your paper within the next 15 years?

un_function(encryption):

Write a secret on the paper. For non-reversible encryption, what can you do to ensure this stays secret? (eat the paper, _dissolve, _have someone else eat it, call un_function(sound))

un_function(sound):

What kinds of sounds can you make with paper (_rip, _cut, _score, _rub, _bite, _slice, _burn)? How long can you make the same sound with a piece of paper? Does it change with multiple layers of paper? What kinds of fuzzy border sounds do you hear?

un_function(transposition):

How can you use a different form to re-explain the above un_functions? Dancing, Humming, Hiking, traditional computing, Cooking, a game?
